Cousin, you were always a quiet stay to yourself kinda of person. However, when you were around there was this quiet gentle Spirit that you carried with you and brought to the environment. I know you have faced many things that tried to take the Spirit away from you. But, you are now in heaven where the Holy Spirit can never be diminished or taken away. RIP ❤️ Gwenie

He defended His "right" to sample a new food recipe I made over a house on the East side of Detroit...wow he was so excited! (Ancient Seaboard Scrapple) (It was called)! I'm not sure if he enjoyed "it" as much as he defended tasting—MÿsterPetey~

I always will remember you as my first cousin that I knew that worked in a bank. You are the oldest grandchild to so many of us. When grandma would have us all over on Wipple you would always stay in your room and when you would leave you would put a lock on your door. As I became a teenager I would see you downtown on your break you would always invite me to your job so I could see what you did everyday. I always thought you were so smart. I'll always love you big cousin. I know your mom and grandma are glad you made it to see them. Rest in Heaven cousin.

I do remember Ronald. The last time I saw him, we were just 14 years old. He joked with Daddy about giving him the car keys. Daddy didn't make a comment, just giving him that "Fondren" smile as he looked at Ron over his sunglasses. He also made a comment, that he and I could be boy friend and girl friend, since we really weren't related. Daddy gave him another one of those smiles, as he cleared his throat. PEACEFUL REST RONALD. XOXOXO

I am hearing so many stories regarding you my dear brother. Even though we did not grow up together, I have some good memories of us. You were my big brother... you taught me how to run like a horse and you betted on me like a horse...lol. I would win and we would go to the store and buy Big Top potatoe chips and Orange Crush pop. We would come back and sit on the porch. I would play Jacks with my friends and you and your friends would play marbles. So much I want to say. I know your earthly vessel is gone and your spirit is with our heavenly father, for that I rejoice. For we know that absent from the body is present with the Lord. Love you your lil sister Denise
