Valerie Collins posted:

I remember walking home from the vending machine down from our house with Earl (Samuel) one day. We was janking and laughing all the way home and all of a sudden he started running in circles and screaming higher than I knew his deep voice could go. I wanted to run but didn't know what he was running from. Finally when he stopped I said through laughter, "What's wrong with you?" He was scared of butterflies and one tried to land on him. I laughed till I cried all on the ground. He begged me not to tell anybody and that made it funnier. Of course I told. Lol I miss you so much! To think of never talking to you again makes my heart ache. Love you bro!
